Academic Dishonesty

- Cheating and plagiarism are very serious offenses in this course.
- Cheating takes place in various ways and students should always carefully follow instructions as well as complete new and original work to avoid the severe consequences.
- Plagiarism/cheating consists of submitting someone else's work in any way, shape, or form and expecting credit for it.
- Plagiarism/cheating is also attempting to use any unethical means such as an unauthorized electronic device (a cell phone, smart watch) to complete a test or quiz.
- Copying from the internet without giving credit to the author is plagiarism and/or cheating.
- Sharing your Google Classroom assignments or any other assignment related documents with anyone is also plagiarism/cheating. Upon discovery, both you and the person(s) you shared the assignment with will receive a zero.
- Plagiarism/cheating is also submitting your past work without asking the instructor's permission to use it again.
- Since plagiarism/cheating is an intentional act, any assignment that is plagiarized will receive a zero. A teacher may allow a student to redo the assignment within a reasonable time frame, but he/she is not obligated to do so.
